OUR PRODUCTS

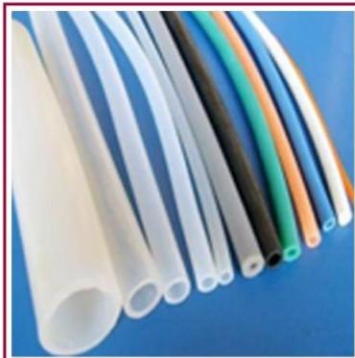

Silicone Tube

Silicone tubing has become more popular in the medical device market over the last five years. Silicone is gradually replacing tubing from other polymers such as Teflon or PU in surgical instrumentation to implantable drug-delivery systems. Silicone tubing offers biocompatibility and ease of manufacturing and also offers good choice in design without sacrificing quality or durability. Good biocompatibility compared to other thermoplastic has finally given silicone tubing a boost.

These tubings find extensive application in various industries and have gained tremendous appreciation in market for their qualitative features. These are available in different specifications & can be customized as per client's requirement.
